Taylor is a member of the Professional Liability Department where she focuses her practice on the defense of public entities, public officials, municipal and county governments, and school districts in the areas of employment law and civil rights.

Prior to joining Marshall Dennehey as an associate, Taylor served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Craig A. Ambrose, J.S.C. in Burlington County, where she gained experience in both the Family and Criminal Divisions. Upon completion of the clerkship term, she worked for a family law firm in New Jersey.

A graduate of Widener University Delaware Law School, Taylor made the Dean's List during the Fall 2021 and Fall 2022 semesters for her exceptional academic performance. Additionally, she earned a Pro Bono distinction for her involvement in the Veterans' Law Clinic, where she provided free legal representation to primarily low-income and disabled veterans and their dependents. Taylor also received Certificates of Achievement in Disability Law and Legal Problem Solving.

Taylor is admitted to practice in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the U.S. District Court of New Jersey.

Outside of her work at Marshall Dennehey, she enjoys various hobbies including spending time with her dog.
