

Andrew W. Maffett

Special Counsel

AWMaffett@mdwcg.com

Harrisburg – 717.651.3505

Andrew has been practicing workers' compensation law in Pennsylvania since 2014, representing employers and workers' compensation carriers before Workers' Compensation Judges, the Workers' Compensation Appeal Board, and Pennsylvania Commonwealth and Supreme Courts.

Andrew has represented a broad range of employers—from small businesses to large corporations—across industries such as manufacturing, retail, and landscaping, as well as public sector entities, in matters involving workers' compensation and the Heart and Lung Act. He has also delivered client-focused presentations on various workers' compensation topics, including legal developments and case law updates, helping organizations stay informed and compliant with evolving regulations.

Education

- West Virginia University College of Law (J.D., 2013)
- Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University (B.A., 2010)

Admissions

- Pennsylvania, 2013
- U.S. District Court Middle District of Pennsylvania, 2020

Associations & Memberships

- Dauphin County Bar Association, Workers' Compensation Section

Representative Cases & Matters

- Secured a defense victory in a disputed work injury claim, where the court granted our motion to dismiss and concluded that no employer–employee relationship existed on the alleged date of injury, eliminating significant wage loss exposure for the employer.

Practices

- Workers' Compensation Defense

- Secured a favorable ruling for an employer in a workers' compensation case involving claims for ongoing disability benefits. Through fact and expert witness testimony, we successfully demonstrated that modified-duty work was available and that the claimant had fully recovered from the alleged work injury. The ruling resulted in the suspension and termination of benefits, eliminated future indemnity and medical exposure, and preserved the employer's right to pursue reimbursement for benefits paid during the pendency of the litigation.