Philadelphia – 215.501.2729

Heather is an Associate in the Professional Liability Department in the Philadelphia office. She represents clients in professional liability matters, drawing on her prior litigation and courtroom experience.

Prior to joining Marshall Dennehey, Heather served as an Assistant District Attorney with the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office for three years. In that role, she gained substantial courtroom experience arguing motions and handling trials, as well as investigating and charging cases.

Heather earned her juris doctor from Rutgers Law School in 2023, where she served as a Marshall-Brennan Constitutional Literacy Fellow. During law school, she also gained practical experience as a summer intern with the Denver District Attorney's Office.

She earned her undergraduate degree in Strategic Communications from Temple University in 2017.

Outside of the office, Heather is an avid runner, hiker, and rock climber. She also enjoys cooking and baking.

Heather is admitted to practice in Pennsylvania.
